

Ms. Columbia

The only problem with Women's Studies is that it preaches Feminism. A belief system that advocates an accident of nature, born a girl, makes females superior to men in all matters under the sun. Men are deemed guilty until they prove themselves innocent, females are innocent until proven guilty, and even then, it still ends up being a guy's fault.

Feminists claim they are oppressed in a patriarchal society. Oppressed compared to whom—princesses in fairy tales. If you want to know who the real oppressors are just look at who lives longer, who controls a greater percentage of the wealth, on whom more money is spent for health, who receives less jail time for the same crimes, and who's fatter. It's not guys.

America is a de facto matriarchy. Females can murder incipient human beings (abortion), newborns, young kids, boyfriends and husbands with no or little punishment. And Women's Studies are in large part responsible for the lunatic female syndromes that excuse ladies for killing others. If men were really running the show, that wouldn't happen.

Yet you say, men hold most of the jobs above the glass ceiling, and right you are. Real power, however, is not in who holds a position but in what they believe. Women Studies has successfully created in universities and society a Feminist Establishment, a unitary belief system held by enough influential persons to dominate over other beliefs in society. Over the past 40 years, Feminists have so scared males that they no longer believe in nor will they fight for their rights. As a result, there aren't many men left, but a lot of androgynies.

That may make you ladies feel powerful, but who's going to defend you against a real threat. Don't forget that if it weren't for men, many females would now be Nazi broodmares, Japanese comfort-girls or Commie secretutes.

Women's Studies programs claim to want equality, but in reality their aim and achievements are preferential treatment: In New York, 57% of undergrads are females, 63% of masters degrees and over a majority of doctorates go to females. In America, girls earn more per unit of time worked and unit of risk incurred, yet they want more money; females can generally commit perjury in court with no punishment, receive custody of children and child support, or hidden alimony, 90% of the time; and they don't have to register for the draft. The Feminists aren't out for a meritocracy, not even a quota-ocracy but a "hypocrisy."

Columbia's Women's Studies feeds on demonizing, denigrating and dissing guys—blaming men for all the World's evils while exalting females as innocent, virtuous victims. After all, the Feminists argue, men cause the wars? Tell that to the guys pushing up daisies in the Falkland Islands. Then there's the influence of Condoleezza Rice on the current wars, April Glassbie on the first Iraq war, the 1.8 million more females than men who voted for Lyndon Johnson, Woodrow Wilson's wife refusing to compromise with Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge in order for America to join the League of Nations, Queen Victoria's Boar War in which the brutality of concentration camps was perfected, Catherine the Great of Russia and others. No, when females are in a position of power they are as likely, perhaps more so, to abuse it.

The lawsuit against Columbia's Women Studies is just one of three trying to win back the rights of guys trampled by Feminism. The case makes two basic accusations: violation of equal protection and the government aiding a religion. On equal protection, think of Title IX of the Educational Amendments of 1972. Title IX requires universities to offer girls equivalent athletic opportunities as those offered to guys. The same requirement applies to all educational programs—not just athletics—when a university receives financial assistance from the Federal Government. Columbia receives such aid, so it is violating Title IX by not having an equivalent program for guys or not eliminating the Women's Studies. Sure guys can take Women's Studies courses, but it is of no benefit to them; just like a girl taking a male sport—she'll spend her time on the bench. In Women's Studies the guy will spend his time being walked over by girls in their stiletto heels—hmm that might not be so bad.

On the religion issue, New York and the Feds provide Columbia assistance that inures to the benefit of Women's Studies, which preaches Feminism. A religion need not have gods or goddesses. But requires irrationality—a trait not unknown to Feminists, and acting in accordance with a belief that is against ones interest, or doing something stupid—another trait not unknown to Feminists. If the Court concludes that Feminism is a religion, then every Women's Studies program across the land that pushes Feminism ends, the 800 million dollars a year that the Federal Government gives to Feminist organizations under the Violence Against Women Act ends, and every bit of state or local help given to programs with a Feminist slant end. Feminists will finally be on their own to prove whether they are strong and independent persons.

(If any Columbia students or organizations are interested in joining the case as named plaintiffs, please contact Roy at www.roydenhollander.com.)